Step back in time...

Imagine you are amongst the Australians coming away with memories at the close of WW1. This home would have been there with you. Built during the "Roaring Twenties" era, can you imagine living with optimism before the years of economic depression, and you, owning a home built in this era, that epitomised a style of Australian architectural design that came about to suit our Australian conditions.

Here is an opportunity to reach back in time, and make this gorgeous property yours and become the next chapter in its future.

As you walk through the front gate you cannot help but notice the lovely sweeping veranda, encompassing the corner ended gables, depicting the era.

As you step inside the grand entrance, you will appreciate the elegance of the original, internal, ornate fretwork, encasing a clock, period picture rails and timber details all complemented by Axminster carpets and 3.5-metre ceilings.
